

Guide to the Joint Fiction Reserves

Conarls

<http://www.conarls.org/>

3rd Edition

Spring 2008

INTRODUCTION

The Joint Fiction Reserves (JFRs) exist to preserve and make available for public library borrowers out-of-print works of fiction.

Three Joint Fiction Reserves exist in the United Kingdom (UK) and Ireland: the English JFR, the Irish JFR and the Scottish Fiction Reserve.

- The initial set of allocations for the English JFR, involving libraries in the South East, was drawn up in 1946. A second set of allocations involving the rest of the country was drawn up in 1962. The English JFR has 100 participating libraries.
- The Irish JFR, established in 1965 and covering the Republic and the North, has 24 participating libraries.
- The Scottish Fiction Reserve was set up in 1955 and involves all 32 Scottish public library authorities.

The Scottish Fiction Reserve is not covered in detail in this Guide, but introductory information can be found on page 15.

The English and Irish schemes operate in a similar way: participating libraries aim to acquire all new fiction published within a particular alphabetical allocation and to make this available for interlibrary loan.

This Guide contains the latest available details of these alphabetical allocations and the addresses to which interlibrary loan requests should be made. It supersedes the Guide to the Joint Fiction Reserves, 2nd Edition (1999).

The regulations for the operation of the English JFR are included here for the guidance of participating libraries, together with some recommendations for good practice.

ENGLISH JOINT FICTION RESERVE

Regulations and Recommendations for Good Practice

1. The allocation of books to different libraries in the Regional Joint Fiction Reserve is on an alphabetical basis by authors' names. When the JFR was set up, libraries agreed to collect all new books within their allocations and to accept offers of discards. (Allocations are as given in this Guide.)
2. One copy of all new fiction in the allocations, including translations into English and reprints where the work is not already represented, should be purchased for the Reserve. It is essential that these works are visible on the Library OPAC and, where possible, on a national union catalogue such as UnityUK.
3. Coverage normally extends to all fiction items published in the UK. No critical criteria should usually be applied in selection.
4. Junior fiction is included within the scheme and should be purchased. It may be limited to items with text or with more than 32 pages.
5. Large print editions should be purchased even where the title is already held in a standard edition.
6. Other reprints and new editions of titles already held need not be purchased unless they contain substantial new textual material.
7. Hyphenated authors' names should be collected under the initial of the first part. Collections with an editor should be acquired under the editor's name, those without under the title.

8. Books acquired for the JFR should be identified as such and preserved for indefinite future use. Ideally, items should be allocated directly to the Reserve rather than relying on transfer of used copies.
9. The scheme is open to all readers throughout the UK and Ireland in any kind of library. There are no restrictions by type of fiction or purpose on what may be borrowed. Applications for loan should be made directly to the library holding the item.
10. The JFR must not be used to alleviate supply problems of popular in-print titles. Some libraries have a stronger policy and routinely decline to lend any in-print material. Nevertheless, in general JFR requests for in-print material are permitted.
11. Requesting libraries may approach lending libraries in their own Region as a first resort (subject to any restrictions imposed by the holders of the stock); if unsuccessful they approach the JFR stock-holder and then locations in other Regions.
12. Requests must include the requesting library's BL customer code and a request reference number unless alternative arrangements already exist, such as within regions or between users of the same ILL management system. Requests should also include details of the cost schemes to which the requesting library belongs, where appropriate.
13. Fiction discards should first be offered to the appropriate library within the scheme (see below).

Standing Order Purchase

A standing order with a library supplier for all relevant items appearing in BNB is regarded as the best means of acquisition. However, where this is done it is essential that the supplier provides separate notification of items supplied for the JFR so that statistical records may be kept.

Junior Fiction

Alternative sources for junior fiction are the Irish JFR and the Yorkshire Libraries and Information Headquarters at Wakefield where an A-Z out-of-print Junior Fiction collection is maintained.

Discards

Offering and accepting discards for the JFR has not been sufficiently emphasized in the past, and should be encouraged. It is a useful means of retrospective collection and gap-filling and can also provide valuable duplicate copies at minimal cost.

Problems and Queries

Any problems or queries regarding the Joint Fiction Reserves should be addressed to your regional representative to Conarls, of whom details are available from the Conarls website: <http://www.conarls.org/>.

Schedules

For historical reasons, the English JFR has three schedules. Schedule 1 was the first, drawn up in 1946, and involves libraries in the South East of England. A revised schedule was drawn up in 1988 involving some additional libraries; it was agreed at the time that it was not viable to perform a wholesale retrospective transfer of stock, hence the second schedule operates parallel to the first. Schedule 3 was drawn up in 1962 and involves libraries from the rest of England.

IRISH JOINT FICTION RESERVE

Introduction

The Irish Joint Fiction Reserve Scheme was established in 1965 and is administered by An Chomhairle Leabharlanna on behalf of the Committee on Library Co-operation in Ireland (COLICO).

The Reserve consists of adult fiction held in reserve for inter-lending purposes. The allocations of the Reserve among the twenty-four participating libraries in the scheme are based on the letters of the alphabet, with each participant collecting and holding fiction by those authors which come within the letter or letters allocated. Additions to the Reserve are by direct purchase and by transfers of fiction between libraries.

Rules and Regulations

1. Materials requested through the Irish Joint Fiction Reserve must be out-of-print.
2. Material will be lent at the discretion of the holding library.
3. The receiving library will be responsible for safekeeping and will determine whether to pass the book to its reader.

4. All libraries are encouraged to offer withdrawn fiction to the appropriate holding library. Transport funds to a maximum value of €100[§] per authority will be refunded by An Chomhairle Leabharlanna, on receipt of an appropriate invoice and details of transferred books.
5. Applications should be made using appropriate form and entry format.
6. Libraries should endeavour to respond to requests within 14 days of receipt.
7. Use of the scheme indicates a willingness to accept and to comply with these regulations.

Back-up Libraries

In the event of a library not being able to satisfy a request, the request should be forwarded to one of the two back-up libraries, and the requesting library informed that this has happened. For libraries in the Republic of Ireland, requests should be sent initially to:

DiÉin Laoghaire/Rathdown Public Library Service HQ
 1st floor, Duncairn House
 Carysfort Avenue
 Blackrock
 County Dublin
 Tel: Dublin (01) 278 1789 / 278 1790 / 278 1791
 Fax: Dublin (01) 278 1792

For libraries in Northern Ireland, requests should be sent initially to:

Belfast Education and Library Board
 Belfast Public Libraries
 Central Library, Royal Avenue
 Belfast BT1 1EA
 Tel: Belfast (028) 9024 3233
 Fax: Belfast (028) 9033 2819

In the event of no satisfactory response from either of the two back-up libraries, the request will be returned to the originating library. At this stage the originating library should consider making use of the English JFR.

SCOTTISH FICTION RESERVE

The Scottish Fiction Reserve, set up in 1955 to ensure the systematic collection and preservation of the works of Scottish novelists, major and minor, operates in a different way from the other schemes. All 32 Scottish public library authorities participate and collect on a basis of local association, each library making itself responsible for authors born in its area or closely associated with it. The allocations of authors to libraries is set out in the Directory of Authors in the Scottish Fiction Reserve (ISBN: 0-902220-77-2), revised in 1986 and available from the National Library of Scotland, George IV Bridge, Edinburgh EH1 1EW.

ABOUT CONARLS

Conarls is a co-operative providing strategic and operational support for library resource discovery and sharing in the United Kingdom and Ireland.

Members include a nominated representative from the library and information sector in each of the English regions, Ireland, Scotland, Wales and the British Library. The current list of member organisations is:
